Author Guidelines

We actively welcome contributions from all authors (we are especially keen on acupuncture articles). If your article is already written, please submit by the methods indicated in '1' below. If you have not yet written an article, it may be a good idea to check with us to find out if we are broadly interested in the proposed subject. This may depend on factors such as whether we have recently published an article on the same subject. Please remember that we have a Case Histories Section on our website if you have a short case history to submit.

Please note that we cannot guarantee to accept any article for publication until we have had a chance to see the finished article. All accepted articles are subjected to an editorial process. This involves us responding to you with any queries, comments, suggested changes etc.

1. Articles should be mailed as email attachments (Word), presented on disk (Macintosh or PC formats), or good quality typewritten/printed sheets suitable for scanning.
2. References should be given wherever possible for quotations, specific information referred to in the text, statistics etc. References should include author/s, title of book (or if a Journal then title, date, volume/issue number), publisher, page number.
3. Chinese texts should be referred to by Pinyin name and common English translation e.g. Su Wen (Plain Questions).
4. Illustrations: We can accept photographs (please also send negative) and material for scanning. If tables, charts etc. are to be included it is generally best if we produce the final version of these from your roughs.
5. Acupuncture points should be referred to using pinyin name and point number, e.g. Zusanli ST-36. Use the following prefixes for point numbers:

Lung LU	e.g. Chize LU-5
Large Intestine L.I	e.g. Hegu L.I.-4
Stomach ST	e.g. Zusanli ST-36
Spleen SP	e.g. Taibai SP-3
Heart HE	e.g. Shenmen HE-7
Small Intestine SI	e.g. Houxi SI-3
Bladder BL	e.g. Feishu BL-13
Kidney KID	e.g. Yongquan KID-1
Pericardium P	e.g. Daling P-7
Sanjiao SJ	e.g. Waiguan SJ-5
Gall Bladder GB	e.g. Fengchi GB-20
Liver LIV	e.g. Xingjian LIV-2
Ren REN	e.g. Guanyuan REN-4

Du DU

e.g. Mingmen DU-4

6. Herb names should start with the Pinyin followed by the pharmaceutical name, e.g. Huang Qi (Radix Astragali), Mai Men Dong (Tuber Ophiopogonis Japonici) etc. We adopt Eastland Press's Materia Medica as standard.

7. Herbal prescriptions should give the pinyin name first followed by the English name used in Formulas and Strategies (Eastland Press), e.g. Wu Ling San (Five Ingredient Powder with Poria).

The Journal of Chinese Medicine was founded in 1979 at a time when information on acupuncture and traditional Chinese medicine was hard to come by. Early issues focussed on presenting clear, detailed information on basic Chinese medicine theory to a level unavailable elsewhere in English. Since then, the Journal - like the Chinese medicine profession in the West - has come a long way, and The Journal of Chinese Medicine is now recognised as the premier English language journal on all aspects of Chinese medicine to be published in English.
